1. Have you experienced some life-shaking events where you sensed that your knowledge of God significantly deepened?
2. How are arrogance and anger connected? What are the things that make you the angriest? How does that reveal your heart of arrogance? How does humble repentance bring an end to anger?
3. How does arrogance keep us from worshipping well? How does worship fight against our arrogance and give us hope in hardship?
4. As you go through hardship, what are those attributes of God that you need to remember, that give you the most hope and comfort?
5. When you get into hard times, are you more likely to minimize your pain and pretend that it is not so bad, or do you allow yourself to feel it's true weight? Why is facing our hardship squarely necessary for true faith to exist?
6. Where does rejoicing come from when we are suffering hardship? Where is our true joy to be found?
