
1.) In what way(s) do you most feel the reality of "Friday," living as a broken person in a broken world? What is your typical emotion when you experience these difficult realities?

2.) What are places you tend to look for hope in a better life here? What keeps you from being on your tiptoes looking forward to eternity?

3.) What is your favorite vision of the risen and glorified Jesus? What is it about the reality (not just the idea) of future glory that most comforts and encourages you?
